Long considered a strategic backwater from Washington's perspective, South Asia emerged in the 21st century as increasingly vital to core U. S. foreign policy interests. India, the region's dominant actor with more than one billion citizens, is often characterized as a nascent great power and indispensable partner of the United States, one that many analysts view as a potential counterweight to China's growing clout. Since 2004, Washington and New Delhi have been pursuing a strategic partnership based on shared values and apparently convergent geopolitical interests. Numerous economic, security, and global initiatives, including plans for civilian nuclear cooperation, are underway. This latter initiative, first launched in 2005, reversed three decades of U. S. nonproliferation policy. Also in 2005, the United States and India signed a ten-year defense framework agreement to expanding bilateral security cooperation. The two countries now engage in numerous and unprecedented combined military exercises, and major U. S. arms sales to India are underway. The value of all bilateral trade tripled from 2004 to 2008 and continues to grow; significant two-way investment also flourishes. The influence of a large Indian-American community is reflected in Congress's largest country-specific caucus. More than 100,000 Indian students are attending American universities. Further U. S. attention on South . . . This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
