Excerpt: . . . COURSE OF STUDY FOR PRIMARY AND GRAMMAR SCHOOLS. ARITHMETIC. i1: --The teacher who would do to good advantage the work of any grade in this subject should study carefully the outlines for every other grade. As will be seen, an endeavor has been made to present the easv applications of number without reference to the traditional text book order of subjects. There is no educational reason why simple work in decimals should be deferred to the Fifth Grade, or why denominate numbers should be left until fractions are mastered. Under the plan here outlined the pupil will proceed from the easy to the more difficult practical applications of the arithmetic as he passes from grade to grade. Further, the pupil who is compelled to drop out of school before completing the grammar course will have mastered enough of the applications of arithmetic to prepare...
