Excerpt: . . . and we are not likely to suffer want or need; neither are we likely to accumulate large fortunes. There are many heavy expenditures borne by the farming community, such as farm improvements, repairs, drainage, fertilizers, etc. , but we opine that the very heaviest burden carried by the farmers of southeastern Indiana is that of fencing their farms against the incursions of breachy, and oft times nearly worthless, stock. Strange as it may seem, we find in many communities a class of persons who are extremely jealous of what they claim as their inalienable rights and liberties, the right of ownership of a herd of scabby bovines, and elongated landpikes, without visible means for their support, and the liberty for such pestiferous stock to run at large and filch their living from the fields and crops of the farmer, unless kept at bay by dint of extra effort and superior fencing. We think in this regard that forbearance has well nigh ceased to be a virtue, and that the time is near at hand when every land-owner will favor the prohibition of stock running at large; we learn that the Commissioners of Switzerland county so ordered at their last session within their jurisdiction, and we trust that their action will not be the exception, but the rule for all this region of country. Taken all in all, we think our condition as agriculturists better than one year ago. We have no cause for repining,...
